

Learn Look Leave

Avoiding contact with unexploded munitions and the areas of former and active military bases and training areas where they may be found is the best way to stay safe.

To reduce the risk if you are in an area where there could be unexploded munitions, remember:

Learn – Familiarize yourself with what munitions look like. This will help you know what to avoid.

Look – In areas that could contain unexploded munitions, watch carefully and be aware of your surroundings. Stay in cleared areas where munitions items will be easier to see.

Leave – If you see something you suspect is an unexploded munitions item; leave immediately. Don't touch it. Don't try to move it. Don't run, but carefully go back the way you came.

Once you are at least 100 feet away, leave a marker, if possible, to guide explosive experts to the site. Report any such finding to local authorities.
